

INTRO AND OBJECTIVE

Guo Pei, China's leading couture visionary, is launching a new luxury fragrance that embodies the same imperial tone of her garments. Remembering the ancient traditions and symbols of her heritage, this fragrance was inspired by antique Chinese tea boxes of royalty and imperial palaces.

ABOUT GUO PEI

From childhood Guo Pei always had a passion for dressmaking. Overcoming an oppressive society in the throws of a cultural revolution, she had the courage to pursue her passion in spite of change. She found tradition in innovation, weaving ancient stories of female empowerment into her garments and celebrating the diversity of women everywhere.

She unites them in a mission to succeed, despite obstacle and challenges. In 1997 she launched her own label and atelier, Rose Studio outside Beijing. Today, she employs nearly 500 skilled artisans dedicated to producing her stunning creations with spectacular craft.

GUO PEI'S WORK

Guo Pei's designs exude opulence, delicacy, and power. Her luxurious garments have a vision that is rooted in tradition and cultural heritage, invoking history and mythology through intricate craftsmanship, opulent embroidery and sumptuous detail. They are works of art that spell exclusivity and elegance. Her use of intricate motifs, symbols and patterns provide a wealth of inspiration for a fragrance that represents the woman of today.

HISTORICAL REFERENCE

ICONOLOGY AND ICONOGRAPHY

Dynasties- Each of Guo Pei's creation tells a story of female empowerment, especially in the face of opposition. This was especially relevant to the cultural climate of Pei's childhood.

Yuan and Ming Dynasty (1279 – 1368, 1368- 1644 respectively): The dragon became a prominent imperial emblem.

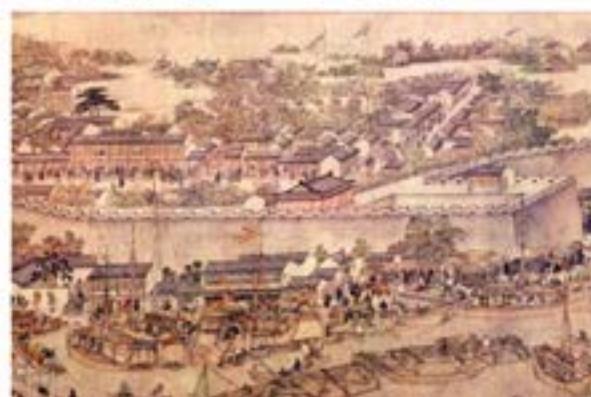

Qing Dynasty (1644- 1911): The era when fashions were defined by the rich materials and ornate styles of China's last imperial dynasty.

Mao Era (1949 – 1978): During the rule of Mao Zedong, China's unofficial uniform became coarsely woven, somber hued garments worn by all civilians.

Recurring Themes:

- Peonies: Flower of china, riches, honor.
- Waves: Stillness and conservation
- Clouds: Immortality and fortune
- Dragon- Power, strength, good luck

Other inspirations include pottery, architecture, and buddhist legends

TEAS AND ART FORM FOR CHINESE ROYALTY

Just as Guo Pei's designs stand for wealth in class and tradition, elegant and ancient Chinese tea wares were once the banner for the wealth and status of their owners. Further, tea masters were considered artists in his or her own right.

Culturally relevant, rooted in tradition, and associated with opulence, both tea boxes and Guo Pei's designs represent the role luxury markets play in an individual's quest for respect and power.

DESIGN INSPIRATION

ICONOGRAPHY

Inspiration: Every woman's heart has a dragon, independent and constantly striving for success in the face of oppression. An embodiment of courage and strength, she is hidden in the calm appearance of a woman surging with passion

Identity: The box tells the story of a fierce woman so powerful, she redirects the currents of the ocean, redefines the limits of her purpose and expands the boundaries of her home. In a quest for self-actualization and success, she pushes the boundaries of her own talents and capabilities. She claims and creates, soars and scours, builds and binds. She is courageous, confident, bold, and brave. She is the dragon heart, always on the quest for greater and more glorious things.

Waves- Stillness and conservation
Clouds-Immortality and fortune
Dragon- Power, strength, good luck

SHARED VALUES

HERITAGE: Guo Pei prides herself in the culture she comes from and the heritage she owns. She weaves ancient stories of powerful female symbols into her works. Just like the dragon, She Is powerful, fierce, and strong. She Is - the fragrance, embodies this mission to celebrate diversity of culture while uniting women in a common movement of cultural and historical pride.

EMPOWERMENT AND CONFIDENCE: Guo Pei displays females as having the heart of a dragon, very independent and constantly striving for success in the face of oppression, embodying empowerment and courage. Her consumer mirrors the same mission of confidence and self assurance within both personal and professional settings.

EXCLUSIVE AND DESIRABLE: Inspired by traditional tea boxes of imperial china, this fragrance maintains a tone of exclusivity and premier style. Its box encapsulates an essence of priceless antiquity, not captured but preserved in time. This represents the same traits that our consumer would embody, displaying exclusivity and desirability in any thing that she does no matter at what stage in life.

ELEGANCE AND LUXURY: The consumer, Guo Pei the brand and She Is – the fragrance, stand for elegance and luxury. Guo Pei creates the most ornate and elegant garments, which is translated in her unique fragrance, She Is – that further attracts consumers who understand and appreciate luxury. Building a clientele that also invests in the same.

NARRATIVE

Just like a dragon, she wears an armor. Powerful, fierce, and strong. And like the dragon heart, her soul is compassionate and noble. This box embodies her spirit. That spirit lingers within the scent. She is the scent. Timeless, not captured but preserved.

LOGO

Our logo was inspired by the wave pattern seen in Guo Pei's porcelain collection. The wave signifies high status, conservation, and luxury. The geometric layout displays balance in a harmonious contrast to the fluidity of the wave. The simplicity of the logo makes it easily identifiable and creates a direct connection to Chinese symbolism.
